MEDICINAL.

Oh, My Back!

That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by Lidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, theumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as Brown's Iron Bitters, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

What Invention May Do.

The possibilities of science when applied to industrial arts are so very great that careful people hesitate to state their views for fear of exciting ridicule. So, in articles which have recently been published in Lonnatic, or, at best the very wildest of dreamers. The man of to-day would be quite as incredulous if told what inventions and applications of science may do for the people

One writer ventures to predict that in the twentieth century electricity will accomplish marvels which now seem too absurd to seriously set forth. Chops and steaks will be cooked by electric sparks so as to make the Frenchman's cotclette a la minute a reality. The fruits of the earth will be multiplied enormously by the use of electric light behind colored glass. Fruits and vegetables will be grown all the year round, winter and summer, day and night, so that the field that now produces a hundred bushels of any product will yield ten thousand. We now cook our food, but take our air and water raw, and through these two elements come all the disorders and contagions which afflict humanity.

In the future water will be distilled and prepared for human use, and thereby purified from all germs of disease, while air will lections of good, large, mostly blooming PLANTS by mail, postage free, for one dollar for either of the following collections: after which it will be admitted to the glasscovered streets and dwellings in which the man of the future will live. Houses and places of business will be situated in immense inclosed edifices, the air of which will not only be rendered wholesome, but delightful to the sense of smell. Summer and winter, so far as extreme cold or extreme heat is concerned, will be abolished, as the temperature can be controlled by artificial means, and all parts of the globe will become equally inhabitable. Day will have no attractions over night, for the artificial lights will be more than any which the great luminary of day can give us. Then, of course, the air will be navigated, which will help to change the appearance of the surface of the earth, for the great cities will then be situated on healthful hilltops, instead of on the insalubrious plains below. With the great motors shortly to be discovered, huge mountain trains which obstruct man's progress in any direction, can be leveled, while the ice picks around the two poles can be liquified and made navigable. All this seems wild enough, but no doubt very great changes will occur. If food can be produced by improved methods, with less cost, the problem of poverty is solved. If machinery continues to replace handwork, the hours of labor must be shortened and its value increased; but to accomplish this, a Wholesale and Retail Dealers and Shippers of social revolution will be needed by which labor-saving machines will be worked for the benefit of the laborer, and not in competition with him .- The Hour.

The Sultan's Riches.

Our Minister to Constantinople was recently permitted to visit the Sultan's treasury at Constantinople. Guards in black broad cloth stand motionless around the walls, at an interval of four or five feet. In the front room, is the royal cradle of solid PARED COAL of the following varieties: gold, bassinet, and rockers, the two ends, a foot high, connected by a golden bar, on which to hang a curtain or veil. Every inch of it is crusted with rubies, diamonds and turquoises. In the galleries are effigies of all the sultans, weighed down with jewels. with large turbans, bedecked with diamonds and weapons of priceless cost. Thus the dagger of the conqueror of Constantinople has for hilt an emerald two inches long and nearly as thick. The last of the series alone appears in European costume, but with a plume of bird of paradise feathers fastened by an aigrette of diamonds. "There are antique arms and armor, heavy with gold and jewels; innumerable horse trappings and saddles, covered with plates of gold and and saddles, covered with plates of gold and studded with emeralds, rubbies, topaxes, as "Janney's Formula No. 10," is based upon an diamonds and pearls, and saddle-cloths embroidered with precious stones." As backgrounds to the articles in the various cabinets, hang sofa covers of cloth of gold, embroidered with seed-pearls, some of them diamonds, pearl and gold; "samplers" of red velvet, on which texts from the Koran have been worked in beads of diamond; amber mouth-pieces for pipes, studded with diamonds and rubies coffee-sets and tea-sets, of all degrees of magnificence; and vases of crystal, agate and onyx, some of them profusely bejeweled.

There are royal knives, and forks, and spoons, of solid gold, with jewels on their handles, and there is an immense array of clocks; a tea-set of tortoise-shell, as thin as paper; a parasol of white silk, exquisitely embroidered with gold, and having for its staff one single spray of red coral, unique in the world; there are fans innumerable.

"After a vary generalizable are the boundary of the coral of the co After every conceivable use has been made of jewels, the surplus of unmounted stones are gathered by handsful into crystal bowls at one end of the cabinets in the second room;" among them war with Russia, the Government borrowed $30,000,000 from the bank, the officers of which took away to their own vaults as many jewels as would secure the loan. Were an Englishman of the time of Elizabeth to have been told that water would be supplied to every house by means of pipes, that a combustible gas would be distributed in a similar manner from a central reservoir, that messages would be sent across continents and under occans in a few minutes, he would have set down his informant as a lunatic, or, at best the very wildest of dream-
